ABOUT THE MAJOR

Students who major in Education, Culture, and Society are able to customize their knowledge of education and learning based on their career goals. Below are just some of the options that you could pursue through this major. You should select the concentrations that you plan to complete based on what you feel would be best suited to your career objectives and interests. Specific courses within those areas should be chosen in consultation with an academic advisor. We recommend students further develop their skills through internships and hands-on learning experiences.

Workforce Development

Training Specialist/Recruiter/Staff Development

Use knowledge of curriculum planning and learning to develop and train professional employees.

Conference Development/Education Consultant

Lead professional development on a large scale and improve educational settings.

Internship Manager

Create learning opportunities for high school and college students in professional settings. We recommend students complete a dual focus in Diversity and Social Justice.

Diversity and Social Justice

Policy Analyst/Lobbyist/Advocate

Use knowledge of educational systems to evaluate existing policies and advocate for changes. We recommend students complete a dual focus in Workforce Development.

College Admissions/Recruiter

Help transition potential students to college settings.

Youth Case Manager

Support youth in the community with balancing academics, home life, and planning for future. We recommend students complete a dual focus in Youth, Family, and Community.

Youth, Family, and Community

Community Education Coordinator

Develop and maintain education programs in museums, zoos, or other community settings.

Educational Non-Profit

Create extra-curricular educational support for youth through non-profit management and development.

Tutor/Test Preparation

Augment classroom learning and prepare high school students for pre-college testing. We recommend students complete a dual focus in Workforce Development.

NOTE: This major also offers a Teaching & Learning concentration. That option is available by department approval only and is intended for students who have an extensive background in EDU/EDS courses having once been admitted to NKU's Teacher Education Program.
